M'KINLEY'S BOOM.

It Has Struck the State of Michigan.

WITH UNABATED FORCE.

A Great Uprising of the People to the Apostle of High Protection—Ex-President Harrison in Indiana.

Grand Rapids, Mich, Oct. 12—The Grand River valley was ablaze with Republican fire to-day, and the reception accorded to Governor McKinley throughout his 12 hours' trip from Detroit to he Valley City, which brought to an nd his brief tour through the Wolver- ne State might have been the triumphant reception of a returning warrior rather than the progress of a statesman simply expounding the principles of his political party prior to an "off year" election. Along the line of railroads traversed farm houses, cottages and railroad shanties were so generally decorated with lags and bunting that the train seemed o speed between a continuous tri-colored barricade, while in towns, villages, rossroads and even at points where it vas known the train would go by at a 60 niles an hour speed, the country folk vere out to give a cheer and a waving of hats in compliment to the most conspicuous living advocate of high protection ariff.

Governor McKinley's party for the day ncluded Governor Rich, Gen. Russell A. Alger, Attorney General Maynard, ex-Congressman Byron M. Cutcheon, chairman of the board of United States ordnance and fortifications, W. H. Moore, he personal representative of Senator McMillan, William Alden Smythe, Republican candidate for Congress in the Grand Rapids district, and Gen. G. L. udd of the army retired list. The departure from Detroit was made at 8 'clock, and an hour later the Governor vas speaking from a decorated platform o a crowd of 3,000 at Mt. Clemens. As n introduction Chairman Snover asked very man to take off his hat and give hree rousing cheers for the next President of the United States, and the crowd id it twice over. At Pontiac a long procession escorted the party to the pera House, where the Governor spoke or 30 minutes on the tariff question in is most philosophic vein. The audience was largely composed of old men, nd they sagely nodded their heads or houted "That's so," "You're right," hen the speaker made a telling point. n the course of his address Governor cKinley said:

"Idleness makes tramps, tramps make ommunists; and we have this year, for he first time in our history witnessed he spectacle of armies of idle men arching across our fair land. Poverty nd charity are the two dearest things this world. We have never had them efore in this country as we have them ow, but what else could have been ex- ected when the economic system under hich we had prospered for 30 years was uddenly revolutionized and in its place ame the free trade, Gorman-Brice, ritish-Wilson, Democratic methods. ots of voters last year had never lived nder anything but Republican tariff and ey did not know that a Democratic venue tariff policy would involve the ountry in ruin. They thought it would ake no difference if we had no tariff all. But they have found out their istake, for they are face to face with e poverty and distress that has come er the country since that fatal day November, '92, when the policy that d been supreme was overthrown. It o was our boast for 30 years that we d the best paid labor in the world, and cannot maintain that boast unless have such a tariff as will preserve American market for American work- s. The reduction of wages means the cessary degradation of American citi- nship."

Governor McKinley spoke briefly at olly, St. Johns and Owosso. At the tter place, which has considerable man- acturing interests, the crowd was cked solid in two of the wide blocks, Main street leading to the depot, and arly every man and women wore a dge with the inscription, "McKinley '96." At some of the stopping places here ribbon was a scarce commodity e men wore cards with the same le- nd in their hats, while the women pin- d them on their jackets.

A surprise awaited the party at Ionia. though its population is less than 3,- , twice that number of people seemed be in the streets. Five hundred mem- rs of the Lincoln club of Grand Rap- s, as many more from Lansing, the ate capital, and smaller delegations om Saranac, Greenville, Belding and her places had come down to escort visitor to the Valley City, and they ed the curb from the depot to the ho- for, three-quarters of a mile. Every an displayed a sheet of tin, either as apron, an arm shield or a hat, and on every piece was the name of Mc- nley. The first rain of three weeks' ar was encountered here, and the Gov- nor rode to the meeting place in an en carriage and spoke to the throng m a balcony. Referring to the fact at the day before he spoken at Jack- , the birthplace of the Republican rty, he said he was glad to meet and stand on the same platform with the y surviving member of the convention at brought the Republican party into stence, and amid prolonged cheering brought forward and introduced a f. venerable-looking man. "This is one of whom I speak," he said, "the n. Albert Williams," and the crowd ered again. The incident gave Gov- nor McKinley a suggestion for an im- ssioned eulogy of the Republican party the only party that stood for freedom, prosperity, for employment; for pat- tism; for industry at home, for good s, principles that were more dear it to-day than at any time since the at struggle for freedom and union.

oward the close of his address his at- tion was called to an amusing inci- t. Half a block away a large strip canvass bearing the inscription "Our tories are running night and day, a ult of the Wilson bill," had been etched across the street from the post- ce. To this the Republicans had hired men to stand beneath with another vass with the rejoinder, "Yes, in Eng- d." Governor McKinley seized the opportunity and forcibly commented on the statement and the reply.

Grand Rapids was reached at 6 o'clock, and here the Michigan trip was brought to an end with a fitting demonstration. Thousands of people escorted the party to the hotel and thence to Lockerby Hall. This hall has a standing capacity of 4,000 and three times that number struggled for admittance. After speaking for an hour Governor McKinley made a brief address to the throng outside.

At midnight he left for Paulding and Toledo. The first three days of next week he will devote to speeches in his own State, and on Thursday he will begin a two weeks' tour to the southwest and end with an address at Louisville.

SHERMAN SPOKE.

But the Audience Hurrahed for McKinley.

Akron, Ohio, Oct. 12.—Senator John Sherman made his debut in the Ohio campaign with a strong speech at Assembly Hall to-night. The audience was a monster one, being composed of Republicans, Democrats and Populists from all over Summit County. The Senator arrived in Akron from Mansfield this afternoon. He was met at the Erie depot by a reception committee and driven at once to the home of ex-Senator J. Park Alexander, whose guest he was while in town. This afternoon an informal reception was held in his honor at the rooms of the Citizens' Club. It was a strictly non-partisan affair, men of all political pursuasions paying their respects to the distinguished Ohioan, who chatted pleasantly with his visitors for an hour or more.

A procession of several hundred escorted the speaker to Assembly Hall this evening. Henry Perkins, president of the Commercial club, presided at the meeting, and introduced the speaker with a 10-minute speech, which the Senator himself could not help applauding.

Senator Sherman was in excellent voice, though suffering from a cold, which made it necessary for him to take refuge frequently in a handkerchief and a glass of water.

Every time McKinley's name was mentioned it was applauded to the echo. The applause became tumultuous when the Senator with telling emphasis, after a stinging arraignment of the present administration, nominated McKinley for President in '96. After the shouts had subsided some one came out with, "Now let's have Sherman," but the Senator paid no attention to this little interruption, and crowd did not take up the cry. The address occupied an hour and a half in delivery.

HARRISON AT IT.

He Demonstrates His Ability as a Rear Platform Speaker.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 12.—Ex-President Benjamin Harrison to-day again demonstrated his right to the title of the greatest "rear platform" orator in America. Starting from Indianapolis at 9:40 o'clock this morning he made eight speeches, varying in length from two minutes to three-quarters of an hour, to audiences ranging in size from 300 to 10,000, and closed the day's work by addressing 5,000 people in Evans Hall here to-night.

Gen. Harrison's versatility and his ability as an off-hand speaker were never more strongly displayed than they were on to-day's trip. He never repeated himself; he was never at a loss for an apt illustration or a pat anecdote, and his familiarity with the people and the country through which the train passed enabled him to round out his remarks with local allusions which delighted his hearers as nothing else could have done.

For the ex-President himself the journey was in the nature of a personal ovation. Most of his auditors were no doubt staunch Republicans, whose devotion to the party would have insured their presence, no matter who the speaker was, but beyond all party considerations, there were evident in the crowds that cheered the white-haired ex-President a feeling of personal loyalty and State pride that set the people of Sullivan—a Democratic stronghold cheering as lustily as the rock-ribbed Republicans of Green Castle had done. The strongest proof of this feeling was to be found in the fact that, despite the wretched, drizzling weather, the crowds were unprecedentedly large for a State campaign, reaching, in fact, the proportions brought out in a presidential canvass.

Until Evansville was reached, Terre Haute bore the palm for both numbers and enthusiasm. From the moment the General left the station until he reached Naylor's Opera House in that city, there was no cessation in the cheers from the crowds that packed the sidewalks for the entire distance of eight blocks. Inside the building the enthusiasm was, if possible, more pronounced, and it culminated when the venerable Richard W. Thompson, ex-Secretary of the Navy, after a stirring speech, introduced the orator of the day. Men threw their hats in the air and cheered and women waved their handkerchiefs, and the applause broke out again and again as Gen. Harrison made a telling point.

But Terre Haute gave the noisiest welcome, because Terre Haute was the largest town on the route. At all the villages and towns where the train stopped—at Blainfield, Clayton, Brazil, Green Castle, Sullivan, Vincennes and Princeton—the crowds more than made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers. And Evansville, of course, gave the warmest welcome of all, because Evansville was the scene of the closing demonstrations of the day.

When the train drew up in the union depot in this city at 6 o'clock this evening awaiting him in the slowly falling rain there were men from all over the southern part of the State. There were marching clubs from Mt. Vernon and Harmony, from Petersburg and Booneville, with scattering delegations from historic Posey County, and farmers from across the line in Egypt, Ill. The Hemenway club of Petersburg acted as special escort to the ex-President from the depot to the St. George Hotel.

At the hotel General Harrison held an informal reception for nearly an hour, during which time several thousand people paid their respects. He then had dinner, and at 8 o'clock was driven to Evans hall, which was already crowded to the doors.

The interior of the building was lavishly decorated.

The ex-President was introduced in a brief speech by Cicero Buchanan and received a welcome which exceeded even that given him at Terre Haute. He bowed his acknowledgments again and again before the enthusiasm subsided, and when quiet was restored began his address. He spoke in substance as follows:

"We have been living under the shadow of tariff reform for nearly two years now. The shadow has been pretty deep—I has clouded every home in the land.

"We have had a tariff debate that began before my venerable and beloved friend who presides over this meeting began to take part in American politics. For 30 years everybody has talked about the tariff but the talk at last seemed to wear out. The free-trader, the tariff reformer, was still in the field and the protectionist who stood for American manufactures and for competent wages still held his place upon the rostrum. But there has in the last two years entered into this discussion the most eloquent and forceful speaker that ever addressed an audience; an orator who has more power to move men than any other—and that orator is 'experience.' He has been talking for two years and I am much mistaken if he has not been talking effectively.

"This question seemed to be one of theory so far as the free trade side is concerned in this generation. The Democrats have not been able to put into law their views until within the last two years. Before that time they exercised themselves in platform declarations and in oratory. One would think they might have been consistent in their platforms but that is not true. Some Democratic platforms distinctly recognized the force and effect of tariff legislation upon American interests and American wages and expressed a sympathy with a policy that should protect these, but then again there appeared a declaration in favor of tariff for revenue only—a policy which our distinguished fellow citizen, my former colleague in the Senate, Mr. Voorhees, declared in a letter to Bayless Hanna to be great nonsense. But now we have come to a time when the country has endowed the Democratic party with power to deal with this question. For the first time there has been responsibility in the utterances and doings of the Democratic party. There came a time when the Democratic party must stop making platforms and begin making laws.

"It may be important to settle the question as to what condition they found the country in when the assumed this responsibility. Just before this radical change in our government, the country was in highest state of prosperity. Our foreign trade was larger than it had been in the history of this country and the beauty of it was that it was something like two hundred million larger in exports than in imports.

"Everybody knows that everybody then was busy. Everybody knows that every mill was running. The comforts of life as distributed among our people were greater than ever before. I said some years ago that the American workingman had the most favored lot of any workingman in the world, and that this was evidenced by the fact that the gates of Castle Garden always swing inward to the workingmen seeking our shore. The workingmen know the land of promise as well as the swallow knows the land of summer. I could not say that today, because the gates of Castle Garden have been swinging outward. That is one of the few ameliorating conditions in connection with the distress of the country—that perhaps our population has diministhed.

"They talk to us about wanting more foreign markets. In the tariff bill of 1890, we introduced a reciprocity policy, securing markets of enormous present value to the farmers and manufacturers of this country and of a possible value that can hardly be calculated; and we had these markets without endangering the wages of any American workman. But putting sugar on the free list saving every farmer a substantial sum every year in the price he paid for sugar—these countries like Cuba and Brazil and the Central American states gave to use either free entrance or a reduced rate for many of our manufacturers and other products.

General Harrison and his party will leave Evansville at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning for Indianapolis, where they will arrive at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Reception to Mrs. Bradford.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 12.—The Colorado Women's Advocate club to-night gave a reception at the Albany Hotel in honor of Mrs. Mary Carroll Craig Bradford, nominee for superintendent of public instruction. Mrs. Bradford is president of the club, and since its organization last May has worked untireingly for Democracy. She has traveled through the State and has enlisted hundreds of women under the banner of Jefferson and Jackson. The reception was tendered as a token of appreciation of the splendid services rendered that party by her.

The Albany was beautifully decorated, the speaker's platform being a bower of palms, plants and roses. The Seventh infantry band in one of the upper balconies played some entrancing music. Mrs. Bradford's address was on the subject of "Education and its Relation to Good Citizenship and Patriotism." She was received with great enthusiasm and frequent applause. Mrs. Stansbury, nominee for the Legislature on the Union ticket, also spoke, and was followed by Caldwell Yeaman and other Democratic speakers, among them several ladies. Hon. C. S. Thomas sent his regrets, having a previous engagement at Boulder to-night.

Against the House of Lords.

London, Oct. 12.—Sir George Trevelyan, Secretary for Scotland, addressed the Liberals of Glasgow this evening. He said the last parliamentary session proved that the country would be better off without the House of Lords. The majority of peers against popular measures was so overwhelming that there was no prospect of the Liberals carrying out their business before the upper house should be reformed. The hostility between the two houses had become open and permanent.

A Schooner Wrecked.

Baltimore, Oct. 12.—The schooner William Powell, from Onacocok, arrived at Baltimore with Captain Smith Shaw, John Shaw, an Lewis Stockwell of the schooner Henry C. Ely, which sank on the shoals known as the Sisters below Thomas Point. The Ely was bound from Lambert's Point for Millville, N. J., with 135 tons of pig iron for R. D. Wood.

Last Monday the vessel struck on the Sisters, and during the gale of Tuesday night she sprang a leak and filled. The crew made a rush for the rigging. While doing so, Joseph Shepard, colored, was washed overboard and drowned. Captain Shaw and Lewis Stockwell reached a secure place in the rigging, but John Shaw was caught in the cabin and remained there until the rescue was effected. When the Powell took off the three men two of them had been 12 hours without food and shelter.

TRAIN ROBBERS.

They Were at Work in California and Virginia.

CONSIDERABLE AMOUNTS TAKEN

In Both Cases the Express Companies Were the Only Losers—The Southern Robbers Secured Over $150,000.

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 12.—The east-bound overland train due here at 9 o'clock p. m. was held up by two men about six miles below Sacramento last night. The trackwalker was first robbed and then forced to flag the train. The robbers then covered the engineer and fireman with guns and compelled them to accompany them to the express car.

Messenger Page shot twice at the bandits and came near losing his life from a shot fired in return. The engineer and fireman called to Page to open the door as the robbers were going to shoot them if he did not and also were prepared to blow up the car with dynamite.

He complied with their request in order to save their lives, and the robbers looted the car of four bags of gold, the amount of which is not known. They then cut the engine loose, boarded it and ran it toward the city several miles.

The engine was then reversed and set on a wild run toward the train, but by the time it had reached its destination the steam had run so low that the collision caused but little damage.

The robbers made good their escape. The train arrived here at 12.30.

It was a well-planned and skillfully executed robbery. The robbers waylaid the trackwalker on his tricycle about 9 o'clock, tied him hand and foot, stole $5.50 from him and left him helpless at the side of the track.

The trackwalker was just pulling out of Sheep Camp, and the overland was already in sight. With the trackwalker's lantern the robbers signaled No. 3 to stop. Scott slowed up, but did not come to a standstill until the explosion of dynamite bombs under the engine warned him that it was useless to proceed further.

By this time two robbers were on the engine. They sprang on from opposite sides of the track, and began shooting at once. The passengers and train hands say that quite a number of shots were fired before anybody knew what it was all about. The robbers made the engineer and fireman dismount, and walked them back with rifles at their heads to the rear of the express car, where the victims were ordered to uncouple the train. This was done speedily and before the expressman, and clerk of any of the train-hands knew what was going on, the engine was speeding ahead and drawing only the Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express car.

They went ahead five miles with the robbers and the engineer and fireman on the engine. The rest of the train remained at Sheep camp in imminent peril of being telescoped by the Oregon train in the rear. Constable Frommelt of Yolo returned this evening from investigating the scene of the wreckers and robbery. He found about 1½ miles from the city a place where a buggy had been hitched last night. The place was near a bed of tules, which formed a complete screen. Leading towards the tules were the foot prints of two men, so deeply indented that they must have been carrying a heavy weight. Tracks of buggy wheels indicated that it had been driven out there and back toward the town of Washington, opposite Sacramento, though hard ground near the river prevented following the tracks clear to the river. The supposition is that the men drove out there, hitched the horse and walked on the track to the scene of the hold-up. Returning they had the buggy handy to carry the coin, which must have weighed over 300 pounds.

A Reward for Train Robbers.

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—The Southern Pacific Company and the Wells Fargo Company this afternoon offered a reward of $1,500 for each of the men who robbed the overland train near Davisville last night, and $5,000 for the recovery of the amount stolen, which they announce was $50,000 in gold coin.

A RICH BOOTY.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 12—The north-bound passenger train on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad, which left here at 7 o'clock to-night, was held up near Quantico. The engineer and fireman were forced from their engine, and the engine was cut loose and sent ahead. The express car was then entered, the messenger covered with pistols and the safe blown open and robbed. The runaway locomotive was stopped at Quantico by obstructing the track.

It is stated here to-night that there was an unusually large amount of money on the train, probably $50,000. The robbers, seven in number, were masked, and did not blow open the safe, as first reported. They forced the messenger to open it. The railroad company has offered $1,000 reward for the arrest of any one of the robbers.

The express messenger, R. F. Crutchfield, and his helper, H. Murray, barred the doors of the express car, but these were blown open with dynamite. After the robbery, the thieves made off with their booty in the direction of the Potomac river, where it is supposed they had a boat in waiting to take them to the Maryland side. None of the robbers entered the passenger coaches.

The operator at Brooks, six miles from Quantico, discovered that the engine was "wild" as it passed his station, and telegraphed to Quantico, where a switch was thrown so that it was brought into collision with two loaded freight cars and wrecked them. Had the locomotive been permitted to pass Quantico, it would have collided with the southbound passenger train. When the train had come to a full stop, the two robbers were joined by five others. The robbers blew open the express car with dynamite and picked out the package containing money.

The express messenger said that the safe contained $150,000. The robbers secured this and all of the express packages containing money. It is thought this amount will foot up to about $180,000. A large amount of this money was shipped from Richmond.

None of the passengers were molested.

Bank Messenger Robbed.

Cincinnati, Oct. 12.—Bradford L. Eldridge, the 16-year-old messenger of the Second National Bank, was robbed of about $1,000 in cash, and papers for an unknown amount in front of the Commercial Gazette office at noon to-day. He had been in the building and as he stepped out of the Fourth street entrance he was jostled by two men. He did not discover his loss until he was about to mount his bicycle at the curb stone. The robbery was reported at police headquarters and detectives put on the case, but they have no clew to the perpetrators.

THE STAMP STEALERS.

Their Operations Are More Extensive Than Supposed.

Washington, Oct. 12—The stamp robbery at the bureau of engraving and printing discovered yesterday turns out to be much larger than at first supposed. Instead of one package containing 50,000 2-cent stamps, it is now believed that over 200,000, and possibly 250,000 stamps of various denominations are missing. Postmasters in all parts of the country, it is thought, have received fewer stamps than they ordered, and failed to notice the deficiency. When their quarterly reports are made up these shortages may be found. It will take two weeks to discover the full extent of the robbery. When it is known that yesterday's shipment of stamps were served to 1,800 postmasters some idea of the enormity of the task of ascertaining what offices have received short packages is had.

The stealing has been going on for 30 days, and seems to have been the result of a plot. William B. Smith, formerly of Plainfield, N. J., and George W. Longstreet, who were employed in the stamp department of the bureau of engraving and printing, are under arrest, and the detectives are looking for William A. Beach.

Seeking Homes.

Ft. Worth, Tex, Oct. 12—All trains from the north and east are crowded with home-seekers, bound for Oklahoma, Texas and the Pecos valley. The wonderfully big cotton crop of Texas is causing a larger travel in this direction than for many falls. For the celebration of the completion of the Pecos Valley railroad to Roswell over 200 have already gone to the valley, wishing to see the country before the grand gala day.

The train this morning carried 40. The attendance at exercises at Roswell on Monday will be even larger than was counted on. It is to be an epoch making event.

New Japanese Minister for Korea.

London, Oct. 12—A dispatch to the Central News from Tokio says that Korea, being cleared of Chinese, the opportunity has arrived for Japanese to undertake a thorough internal reform of the government of that country. In order to carry out this reform the presence of an experienced minister is necessary, and for this purpose Count Inanie, Japanese minister of the interior, has been sent to Korea. The Emperor has the fullest confidence in Count Inanie, who will proceed at once in the warship Yoshino to Chemulpo. In Korea he will act as a special advisory ambassador.

Stevenson Speaks.

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 12.—Vice President A. E. Stevenson spoke to 2,000 people at Harper's Theater to-night. He talked for an hour and a half on the tariff, defending the measure adopted by the recent Congress, contrasting it with the McKinley bill, and maintaining that its provisions were more beneficial to the people at large. Speaking of recent financial stringency he attributed it to the effect of the Republican legislation, the period of oppression having begun before the Democratic administration went into power, and while the McKinley bill was in full operation.

A Verdict Reversed.

New York, Oct. 12.—In the suit of William R. Laidlaw against Russell Sage, brought to recover damages from Sage, growing out of an explosion of a dynamite bomb in the latter's office, in which Laidlaw, who was hurt, received a verdict, the general term of the Supreme Court to-day reversed the judgment of the lower court and ordered a new trial.

Point Breeze Races.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12. One of the greatest races ever trotted at Point Breeze track was finished in the tenth heat to-day. It was the 23nd class, in which 18 horses started on Thursday. It took five additional heats to-day to finish the winner which finally loomed up in Rockburn, the favorite before the start.

A Test Case Against Poolrooms.

Cincinnati, Oct. 12.—The law and order league has employed an attorney to proceed against the Cincinnati Jockey club to suppress pool selling at Oakley. The club people say they will welcome a test case.

War in Albania.

Belgrade, Oct. 12—Two Albanian tribes have taken the field to settle a dispute, and have some 3,000 men ready for action. The Governor of Kossowo is trying to negotiate an armistice.

A German Convert.

Keokuk, Iowa, Oct. 12. The Keokuk Anzeiger, the local German paper for Southeastern Iowa, in its issue to-day renounces the Democratic party and comes out for the entire Republican ticket.

Shot by a Poacher.

Monroe, Mich, Oct. 12.—Gamekeeper Boyse of the Erie Shooting club, found a poacher on the club's preserves last night and began to drive him off, when the fellow raised his gun and fired at Boyse. The charge of duckshot struck the gamekeeper in the face. The sight of both eyes was destroyed. The poacher made his escape.

Keifer a Candidate.

Springfield, Ohio, Oct. 12. Gen. J. Warren Keifer, exSpeaker of the House of Representatives, announced to-day that he was a candidate for Governor.

FAST HORSES.

Online Shows Quick Time For a Four-Year-Old.

A QUARTER IN 56 SECONDS

The Mile Completed in 2.04—A Remarkable Score in Trap Shooting—Governor Mitchell Objects to the Corbett Fight.

Sioux City, Oct 12—The interstate fair mile track and Online, the great 4-year-old Nebraska paces, reaped new laurels to-day. The weather was perfect and the course was in ideal condition when the beautiful bay appeared at 5:15 to go against themile 4-year-old pacing record of 2.07¼, held by himself.

Chandler was in the sulky and Ed Geers drove Cheerful as pacemaker. The horses scored several times before Chandler was satisfied. At 5.30 Chandler nodded for the word and Online sped away to break a world's record. The crowd knew he would do it. It was in the air. The stop watches said 32 at the first quarter and Online was going easy and smooth. On they flew, the pacemaker half a length in the lead. The half was reached in 1:03, Online not seeming to be half trying. Chandler had not pushed the pacer thus far, letting the beautiful animal go pretty much as he pleased. Without whip and without urging the three-quarters was reached in 1.35. Then Chandler leaned forward and spoke quickly to Online, touching him with the whip lightly. The pent-up energy of the bay was let loose and with great speed he sprang forward. Faster and faster he came on, giving the pacemaker a run for the wire and crossing the line in 2.01, the king of 4-year-old side-wheelers. The last quarter was made in the phenomenal time of 29 seconds, a 1:56 gait.

When Online passed the wire the judges nodded to the expectant crowd, and everyone knew the bay had performed his task. A mighty roar greeted the popular pacer, which the knowing beast acknowledged by a courtly bow.

CHAMPION TRAP SHOOTING.

A Clean Score of 100 Killed Made by J. A. R. Elliott.

Kansas City, Oct. 12.—The American field champion, J. A. R. Elliott, broke the world's record at trap shooting at 30 yards boundary in the second match of the series with Dr. W. F. Carver to-day. Elliott made a clean score of 100 killed, which is one more than the best record heretofore made and which was held by Elliott. Carver's score of 99 equals the best previous record, and the match itself stand without equal in trap shooting contests. Elliott's score is liable to stand as the world's record for years to come.

Carver missed his fourth bird, which was a low flying straight away driver, and was badly hit, falling dead 10 feet outside the boundary, making virtually every bird which left the trap killed. The birds were a strong, fast-flying lot, and a stiff breeze blew across the field, making the shooting difficult and adding to the greatness of Elliott's victory. Elliott used his second barrel 38 times and Carver 55.

Elliott, who lives in this city, was carried from the field on the shoulders of his friends. The final match of the series will be shot to-morrow.

Must Not Fight.

New Orleans, Oct. 12.—The City Item here is in receipt of a telegram from Governor H. T. Mitchell of Florida in answer to a query as to whether the Corbett and Fitzsimmons fight would be allowed to take place on Florida soil. The following is a copy of the reply received from Governor Mitchell:

"Corbett and Fitzsimmons will not be allowed to meet in Florida, even if the legislature has to be convened for the purpose of preventing the fight.

"H. T. MITCHELL,
"Governor."

A New Opera by Strauss.

Vienna, Oct. 12.—The Strauss jubilee opened amid great enthusiasm at the Theater An Der Wien this evening. The Waltz King's friends and admirers filled the house and gave his new operetta such a welcome as has been rarely accorded any composer's work in this city. The Croatian name of the operetta is "Jabaka," that is "The Feast of Apples." It is astoundingly rich in melodies which are easily caught by the ear.

Unseated for Bribery.

St. Johns, N. F., Oct. 12.—The trial of Mr. Keating, Whitewayite member of the Legislature for the St. George's district, was concluded to-day, Justice Little unseating and disqualifying him for bribery and corrupt practices. This makes the sixteenth Whitewayite unseated for these offenses. There is one more trial pending on the same charges.

Clinton T. Brainard, somewhat noted in those parts, and who is a horny-handed but down-trodden lawyer, is in trouble in Denver. Clint has never been able to get the plutocratic public to recognize his great ability sufficiently to divide half the loaves and fishes and so he is now reported to be out in the western part of the State telling his troubles to sympathetic Populist audiences. It seems, however, that last year he gave a check to the firm of Goff & Sons, in Denver, which was returned because there were no funds to pay it. Brainard went to Denver last week and was placed under arrest but was permitted by the justice to go on his own recognizance. His case was set for the 6th but he failed to appear as he is still making speeches in the Populist cause. It is simply monstrous that the oppressive governing classes will not permit a free-born American citizen to write all the checks he wants to or blow up mines without interfering, as the Governor puts it, "with numerous and vexatious prosecutions." Down with plutocracy and let the horny-handed Populist lawyer who earns his bread by the sweat of his jaw rule.

OUR NEW NAVY.

RECCOMMENDATIONS IN SECRETARY HERBERT'S REPORT.

He Wants More Battle Ships and Says They are Absolutely Necessary if We Are Going to Have a Navy.

Washington, Oct. 12.—It is well understood that Secretary Herbert will ask in his annual report for an increase of the navy, and there is good ground for believing that he will recommend that this increase shall be in the form of battle ships and torpedo boats. Since the great fight off the mouth of the Yalu there has been some disposition to laud cruisers at the expense of ships of the line, in view of the havoc wrought by the guns of the Japanese. That engagement certainly showed the destructive power of modern artillery, in whatever ships mounted: but it proved nothing against battle ships, since apart from tactical mistakes or the questions of the best handling, not one of the Chinese armored vessels was in the class of our Indiana, Massachusetts, Oregon and Iowa.

Cruisers have an important place in a navy, but they cannot be substitutes for ships of the line. Battle ships have well been called the backbone of a fleet, and Captain Mahan, whose opinion on such subjects properly carries great weight, only a few months ago declared that the battle ship, in some form, must be the main reliance for the future. Mr. Herbert himself has put clearly the relative value of such vessels. When Mr. Tracy was Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Herbert was chairman of the House Naval committee, and in one of his reports declared that "Congress has now provided for cruisers until, in the opinion of your committee, no others should at present be built, if we are to have battle ships. In battle ships consists the fighting strength of a modern navy. With seven or eight more of these, and their accessories, a reasonable number of torpedo boats, ours would rank fifth among the navies of the world." In his report last year he returned to the subject with these vigorous comments upon unarmored cruisers:

"They can destroy merchant ships, they can fight vessels of their own class, but they cannot meet armored vessels with any reasonable hope of success. During the twenty years of the French revolution, French cruisers and privateers captured many thousands of British cargoes and vessels. English line of battle ships, instead of scattering to convoy merchant vessels, hunted and destroyed the French vessels of war. England, with her mighty battle ships, cut off Napoleon's communication by water. With her wealth she subsidized his enemies, and it is undoubtedly true that the two great factors in the downfall of the great conqueror were the numerous battle ships of England and the enormous wealth of the greatest sea power of the world. If our government in the future is to have naval strength enough to command the peace and be in condition to enforce the terms dictated by its sense of right and justice, it must have more battle ships, and must build a reasonable number of torpedo boats.

The same view is held by the leading naval authorities of other countries. It is true that in France M. Lockroy recently made a sensation by denouncing French battle ships and declaring that fast cruisers are wanted instead, since "our only chance is to cut off English commerce and paralyze her import and export trade." But this is a contracted view. If England had no French and Russian battle ships to fear to-day her naval problem would be much simplified. A wiser opinion is that which is expressed by Lord Brassey, in the current "Naval Annual," when he says that "nothing will compensate for any inferiority in this essential element of naval power. On battle ships our command of the sea depends, and in this class of ship it is all important that we hold an indisputable supremacy." A practical illustration of these views is given in the enormous tonnage put into battle ships, now newly planned or still under construction, by all the great navies. England alone is building, or about to lay down, nine new battle ships, of close upon 15,000 tons displacement each, the Jupiter, Mars, Prince George, Caesar, Hannibal, Majestic, Magnificent, Illustrious and Victorious, together with a tenth, of 12,350 tons, the Renown, previously undertaken. And France and Russia are, on their part, constructing so many that some fears are entertained in England of her not sufficiently outmatching them should those two nations combine.

It has been urged as an argument against battle ships that they are liable to be blown up by a single blow from a torpedo. That is true, and, so far as it is an argument for providing more torpedo boats for our own coast defence the force of the argument need not be underrated. But battle ships have their steel nets to protect them, as well as their rapid-fire guns and the torpedo boat catchers assigned to modern fleets. Besides, battle ships are no more liable to be destroyed than cruisers, and no one proposes to go without the latter for fear of torpedoes. The argument against "putting too many eggs into one basket" does apply to building the largest and more costly types of battle ships, but these are not used in our navy. When it comes to vessels of the types we have, the difference in cost is not excessive between them and first-class protected cruisers. The contract price for the hull and machinery of the Massachusetts and Indiana was $3,020,000 each. The contract price for the protected cruisers Columbia and Minneapolis, built by the same firm, was $2,725,000 and $2,690,000 respectively. The two former are of 10,200 tons displacement, and the two latter 7350. Speed premiums, in fact, carried the price of the Columbia and Minneapolis far above $5,000,000. This high cost is due to the speed and other qualities required of them for their functions. But they are unarmored, protected cruisers, and carry only one 8-inch, two 6-inch, and eight 4-inch guns each, while the battle ships have 18 inches of armor on their sides and 19 and 15 on their main turrets and barbettes, and mount four 13-inch, eight 8-inch, and four 6-inch guns. Imagine the Japanese cruisers encountering such foes!

When the foundations of our new steel navy were laid under Secretary Chandler, protected cruisers were the type most urgently needed, and indeed all that coud then be furnished. His successor, Secretary Whitney, took a new step forward in the construction of our first battle ships, the Maine and Texas. Secretary Tracy carried the standard still higher in his turn, with the three battle ships of the Indiana class, the seagoing battle ship Iowa, and the armored cruisers New York and Brooklyn. Thus far, however, Secretary Herbert has not been authorized by Congress to construct a single new armored vessel, and a trio of small gunboats and another of torpedo craft are all that have been accorded to him. Yet no part of the naval programme laid down for this country is clearer than that which, for several years, has fixed upon an aggregate of about twelve battle ships as required by our needs on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts. For it must be borne in mind that while cruisers are commerce protectors and commerce destroyers, and also the scouts of a fleet, besides being able to fight vessels of their own class, heavy battle ships are harbor defenders, and are thus also valuable adjuncts of the land forts.

The policy announced by Mr. Herbert himself, when on the house naval committee, was that of adding one first-class battle ship each year, until a total of ten or twelve should be reached. At the last two sessions of Congress the condition of the treasury has been put forward as a reason for not furnishing this annual contribution. The excuse should serve no longer. One, if not two, first-class battle ships should be authorized at the coming session.

JAIL BREAK.

The Santa Fe Train Wreckers Were Escaped Convicts.

Denver, Oct. 12.—Three prisoners sawed their way out of the county jail between 8 and 9 o'clock Wednesday night, and immediately after gaining their liberty proceeded to emulate the deeds of the Dalton gang by wrecking trains and robbing residences in the southern suburbs of the city.

In the early hours of yesterday morning the California fast express train, which left Denver on the Santa Fe road, was derailed about three-quarters of a mile on this side of Little ton, the object undoubtedly being robbery. Later on, about 3 o'clock, three masked men looted the town of Littleton, a short distance farther south. Two stores were plundered, violence being used, and an ineffectual attempt made to rob the post-office. The men who broke loose from the county jail are believed to be the guilty parties. They are now said to be in the mountains near Sedalia and a posse of 12 county officers, mounted and armed with Winchester rifles, are in pursuit of them.

An attempt was made to suppress the story of the jail break and it was not reported to the police at all. The same silence was observed regarding the attempt to hold up the Santa Fe train, and it was 8 o'clock yesterday morning before the news of it reached police headquarters.

The jail-breakers and alleged bandits are Ted Newell, alias Sweeny, alias Niron; James Bartlett, alias Chi. Whitney, alias J. W. Carter, and Frank Murray. The first two are ex-convicts, Bartlett being a particularly desperate character and a member of the "hog ranch" gang which engaged in a pitched battle with officers who tried to arrest some of its number in the Platte bottoms last summer. One of the gang was shot by an officer during the conflict. Two of them are now serving penitentiary sentences, while Bartlett had four months to spend out of a year in jail, given him for his part in the "hog ranch" fight.

This man, Bartlett, is believed to be the one who planned the jail break and led in the after operations of the trio yesterday morning. All three escapes were "trusties." Bartlett ran the boiler in the basement of the jail; Newell was elevator man and Murray did chores.

The method in which they broke the trust reposed in them was truely Sheppardian. There are five other trusties in the prison and it is the custom to allow the eight men to amuse themselves from 6 o'clock in the evening, when their day's duty ends, until 9, the hour in which they are locked up in their cells, at card playing in a corridor on the second floor, west wing of the jail.

When Guard Peter Lawson made the rounds of the cells about 6 o'clock in the evening, Bartlettt, Newell and Murray were seated around an improvised table in the place apportioned to them, playing cards with their five fellow trusties. He claims to have seen that everything was secure at that hour, but he was in error. Lawson overlooked the fact that the door of the hospital cell on that tier was unlocked, and it was from this cell that the three prisoners sawed their way to liberty.

Jailer Webber explains that the door of the hospital cell was open, because workmen from an electric lighting company have been setting up a plant in the jail and had access to that cell, among others. He says they must have neglected to lock it upon leaving there Wednesday, and Lawson failed to remedy the oversight. Anyway the door was open when Bartlett and his two companions entered the cell.

The prisoners who were in the corridor about the time of the break, say that the three men left them about 8 o'clock. On the other hand, Jailer Webber is of the opinion that the escape was effected about 8:30. This is corroborated by Jail Matron Havens. She says that about the time named she was in her kitchen, just over the hospital cell. Under her feet she heard sounds, as of a saw working on bars, but paid no attention, as she thought it was the electric light men still at work. The jail was well guarded, as far as numbers go, at the time.

IT DOES NOT PAY.

The State Will Not Make Money on Federal Convicts.

Canon City, Oct. 12.—When it comes to running a national boarding house, there is not much money to be made out of the United States. At least so think the Colorado prison authorities. Some eight months ago the United States decided it would make a change in its national prisoners. It had been the custom to send all prisoners from Colorado, under sentence of the United States, for incarceration at Detroit, Michigan, the national government having made a contract with Michigan for the care of its offenders. Many of the federal prisoners received but light sentences, and it was found that the expense of sending a prisoner from Colorado to Michigan and return, when the sentence was a light one, was expensive work. Accordingly the State of Colorado was asked on what terms it would receive, guard, feed, clothe, care for and hold such federal prisoners as might be sentenced to its penitentiary for one year or less. The commissioners jumped at the chance to increase their revenue. They figured they could feed prisoners for 18 cents a day, guard them for about 4 cents each, clothe them for a penny or two and in the end set the tariff at a dollar a head. At this rate, the prison would soon accumulate fifty prisoners, get fifty dollars a day from the federal government, more than one-half of which would be clear profit, and be doing a roaring business.

But the best laid plans gang aglee, and so did this particular one. It is six months since the deal between the State and the federal authorities was made, and so far the prison has amassed one star boarder, and he is getting a cut rate. The government discovered it could not pay over 75 cents a day for keeping prisoners, which is the present contract rate. The contract is only for a year, and the chances are that after its expiration the government will be given the opportunity to send all its Colorado prisoners to the summer resort in Michigan. There is no money in a crowd of one prisoner at 75 cents a day, with the chance of his escaping and creating a scandal.

Pence Gets Both Emblems and Bottom Gets Nothing.

Denver, Oct. 12.—The Secretary of State believes he has got rid of the protests and counter protests regarding the rooster and the cottage home. The last protest filed by Julius S. Aichele against Lafe Pence being looked on as a Democrat, was to have been decided yesterday, but Mr. Pence saved him the trouble by failing to accept the nomination of the Silver Democrats, which was protested.

The "Silver" Democrats are not on record in the State and Congressional records of the Secretary of State's office as the nominees of that department failed to accept any nominations made under that division of the party. There was in reality no necessity for their doing so. There will be only one Democratic ticket. The Secretary of State has decided that Pence is on the Democratic ticket with the rooster as an emblem and on the Populist ticket under the cottage home and that is probably all he desires for the present. John T. Bottom who was nominated by the Democrats for the Congressional office has been left in the cold and if he runs will have to go on an independent ticket according to McClees. Bottom will ask the courts for a ruling on this question however.

NOTES FROM NEW YORK.

Personal Bits About Men of National Repute.

The State Treasurer's Private Checks.

State Treasurer Colvin has the most unique check book of any man in the State. It is made especially for him, and such check bears the pictures of his three children, little girls all of them and pretty. The calendars that he used to give out when he was an editor also had these three pictures upon them, and the faces of the young members of his family are becoming very well known throughout the State.

Hill's Private Secretary.

Senator Hill has a private secretary who towers far above even the Senatorial silk hat when they walk out together. The secretary's name is Luckett. He is tall and thin and good looking, and is only a boy in years, for he is not yet old enough to vote in any but a Tammany precinct. Young Luckett is a Marylander, and his father is a noted politician down in the Oyster State. Two years ago Luckett was a stenographer in Washington for a western paper. He did some work for Mr. Hill, and now he is the Senator's private secretary and accompanies him everywhere.

A Hard Honeymoon.

One of the frequent visitors to the gloomy Democratic headquarters at the Park Avenue hotel now is Senator Faulkner of West Virginia. He is the chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign committee, and is flitting around the country as no chairman ever did before. Faulkner is a dapper figure, with a fierce moustache and martial French goatee, that utterly belies his peaceful disposition. He is not at home in his present position and does not like it. He is a social light in Washington, and would rather dance than win a political victory. He married a southern beauty but a short time ago, and is spending his honeymoon in running the Democratic national campaign.

THE CHESAPEAKE CANAL.

The Government Board of Experts to Select the Line.

Washington, Oct. 12.—That great project which has excited so much interest in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and the great ports on the South Atlantic coast, to unite Chesapeake bay with the Delaware by a canal, and thus supply the most important line in an internal waterway route from Florida to Long Island sound, has received an impetus by the appointment of an expert board of commissioners to select the line of the canal. In the last river and harbor appropriation bill provision was made for this work in the following paragraph:

"The President of the United States is hereby authorized to appoint a board to consist of an officer of the engineer corps, United States army, not below the rank of lieutenant colonel; an officer of the navy not below the rank of captain, and two civilians, who, together with the chief of engineers, United States army, shall examine and determine from the surveys heretofore made under the direction of the War department the most feasible route for the construction of the Delaware and Chesapeake canal.

"In making such selection, said board shall select the route which, in its judgment, shall give the greatest facility to commerce and will be best adapted to the national defense. The said board shall report its conclusions to the Secretary of War, who shall transmit its report to Congress at the next session, and the sum of $50,000 is hereby appropriated to pay the expenses of said board."

The members of the board, as announced by Secretary Lamont to-day, are General Casey, chief of engineers; Colonel Craighill, now in charge of the river and harbor works at Baltimore; Captain Geo. Dewey of the navy, a member of the light house board; Mendes Cohen of Baltimore, ex-president of the Society of Civil Engineers, and J. Alexander Porter of Savannah, a civil engineer of wide reputation and excellent standing.

The board is expected to go to work speedily in order to comply with the requirement that its report be made to Congress at the short session.

Wild as were the passions in Lali's breast, she thought on the instant of her child, of what Richard Armour would say, for he had often talked to her about not showing her emotions and passions, had told her that violence of all kinds was not wise or proper. Her fingers ached to grasp this beautiful, exasperating woman by the throat. But after an effort at calmness she remained still and silent, looking at her visitor with a scornful dignity. Lady Haldwell presently rose. She could not endure the furnace of that look, and said goodby. She turned toward the door. Mrs. Armour remained immovable. At that instant, however, some one stepped from behind a large screen just inside the door. It was Richard Armour. He was pale, and on his face was a sternness the like of which this and perhaps only one other woman had ever seen on him. He interrupted her.

"Lady Haldwell has a fine talent for irony," he said, "but she does not always use it wisely. In a man it would bear another name, and from a man it would be differently received." He came close to her. "You are a brave woman," he said, "or you would have been more careful Of course you know that my mother and sister were not at home."

She smiled languidly. "And why 'of course?'"

"I do not know that. Only I know that I think so, and I also think that my brother Frank's worst misfortune did not occur when Miss Julia Sherwood trafficked without compunction in his happiness."

"Don't be oracular, my dear Richard Armour," she said. "You are trying really. This seems almost melodramatic, and melodrama is bad enough in Drury lane."

"You are not a good friend even to yourself," he answered.

"What a discoverer you are! And how much in earnest! Do come back to the world, Mr. Armour. You would be a relief, a new sensation."

"I fancy I shall come back if only to see the 'engineer hoist with his own' torpedo."

He paused before the last word to give it point, for her husband's father had made his money out of torpedoes. She felt the sting in spite of her, and she saw the point. "And then we will talk it over at the end of the season," he added, "and compare notes. Good afternoon."

"You stake much on your hazards," she said, glancing back at Lali, who still stood immovable. "Au revoir!"

She left the room Richard heard the door close after her and the servant retire. Then he turned to Lali.

As he did so, she ran forward to him, with a cry. "Oh, Richard, Richard!" she said, with a sob, threw her arms over his shoulder and let her forehead drop on his breast. Then came a sudden impulse in his blood. Long after he shuddered when he remembered what he thought at that instant; what he wished to do; what rich madness possessed him. He knew now why he had come to town. He also knew why he must not stay, or, if staying, what must be his course.

He took her gently by the arm and led her to a chair, speaking cheerily to her. Then he sat down beside her, and all at once again, her face wet and burning, she flung herself forward on her knees beside him and clung to him.

"Oh, Richard, I am glad you have come," she said. I would have killed her if I had not thought of you. I want you to stay. I am always better when you are with me. I have missed you, and I know that baby misses you too."

He had his cue. He rose, trembling a little. "Come, come," he said heartily, "it's all right, it's all right my sister. Let us go and see the youngster. There, dry your eyes and forget all about that woman. She is only envious of you. Come, for his imperial highness."

She was in a tumult of feeling. It was seldom that she had shown emotion in the past two years, and it was the more ample when it did break forth. But she dried her eyes, and together they went to the nursery. She dismissed the nurse, and they were left alone by the sleeping child. She knelt at the head of the little cot and touched the child's forehead with her lips. He stooped down also beside it.

"He's a grand little fellow," he said. "Lali," he continued presently, "it is time Frank came home. I am going to write for him. If he does not come at once, I shall go and fetch him."

"Never! Never!" Her eyes flashed angrily. "Promise that you will not. Let him come when he is ready. He does not care." She shuddered a little.

"But he will care when he comes, and you you care for him, Lali."

Again she shuddered, and a whiteness ran under the hot excitement of her cheeks. She said nothing, but looked up at him, then dropped her face in her hands.

"You do care for him, Lali," he said earnestly, almost solemnly, his lips twitching slightly. "You must care for him. It is his right. And he will I swear to you I know he will care for you."

In his own mind there was another thought, a hard, strange thought, and it had to do with the possibility of his brother not caring for his wife.

Still she did not speak.

"To a good woman, with a good husband," he continued, "there is no one there should be no one, like the father of her child. And no woman ever loved her child more than you do yours." He knew that this was special pleading.

She trembled and then dropped her cheek beside the child's. "I want Frank to be happy," he went on "There is no one I care more for than for Frank."

She lifted her face to him now, in it a strange light. Then her look ran to confusion, and she seemed to read all that he meant to convey. He knew she did. He touched her shoulder.

She lifted her face to him now, in it a strange light.

"You must do the best you can every way, for Frank's sake, for all our sakes. I will help you God knows I will all I can."

"Oh, yes, yes!" she said from the child's pillow. He could see the flame in her cheek. "I understand." She put out her hand to him, but did not look up. "Leave me alone with my baby, Richard," she pleaded.

He took her hand and pressed it again and again in his old, unconscious way. Then he let it go and went slowly to the door. There he turned and looked back at her. He mastered the hot thought in him.

"God help me!" she murmured from the cot.

The next morning Richard went back to Greyhope.

THE NEW GOLD CAMP.

La Belle, N. M.

The recent gold find in the Costilla district, New Mexico, from present indications, is among the most valuable discoveries of recent years. An area of about 10 square miles has been thoroughly prospected, and everywhere is evidence of a practically inexhaustible supply of gold-bearing ore of medium grade, running from $10 to $20 a ton. This ore is free milling and so soft that the cost of reduction is very low.

The new camp has been named La Belle. It is about 45 miles southwest of Catskill, on the Union Pacific, Denver and Gulf road, south from Pueblo, having a daily stage connection with Catskill. The present population of the camp is about 700, with daily arrivals numbering 75 to 100, many of whom are locating there permanently. The little camp presents all the bustling activity of Creede and Cripple Creek in their halcyon days—residences and business houses are going up rapidly, and on every hand is promise of a brilliant future for La Belle.

A committeee of mining experts who have only just returned from La Belle make the most encouraging reports, which more than justify the claims made as to the great richness of the new fields and hold out great promise for their future. What that future may be is of course beyond conjecture, but from the most conservative standpoint, it is certain to prove a valuable addition to the gold output of the West.

The U. P. D. and G. is 150 to 200 miles shorter than any other line to Texas, and is the only line that is but one night out between Colorado Springs and Ft. Worth.

There can be no mistake there is only one short line.

You want to visit the new gold camp, La Belle, N. M. Buy a ticket to Catskill via the U. P. D. & G. Stages daily from Catskill to La Belle. Stage fare, $3 one way; $5 round trip.

The U. P. D & G. is the only line for the new gold camp, La Belle.

If you want to see a real, live, new mining camp, visit La Belle.

A GREAT RAILROAD.

By the absorption of the Chicago and Atlantic railway between Marion and Chicago, the Erie has at last effected its entrance into Chicago, and now occupies the proud distinction of being the only line between Chicago and New York entirely under one management.

One result of this is the arrangement whereby all the through trains of the Erie are now run solid between Chicago and New York without change. Passengers holding through tickets, whether first or second class, are able to go from Chicago to New York without changing cars.

Pullman's most modern sleeping cars are run on all through trains via this line, and on their Vestibule Limited, Pullman dining cars. No extra fare charged on this train. In fact, the rates via the Erie are lower than via any other route offering equal facilities.

U. S. A.

The report of the General of the army deserves wide and thoughtful attention and should receive the most consideration of Congress when that body assembles. Twenty-five years ago an army of 25,000 men was ample for all our requirements; but now that our nation has enlarged to 70,000,000 people, the demands on the army are increasing, and its numbers should be increased to correspond.

The character of the service required of the army has greatly changed in the past few years. Not long ago, its principal duty was to take care of the Indians on the plains; now, its principal duty is the preservation of order in the great centers of population. The numbers that were adequate to the suppression of an uprising of a few dozen or score of Indians are inadequate to the suppression of mobs in a metropolis swarming with tens of thousands of anarchistic foreign-born rioters.

The past summer has furnished lessons in the necessity of an available standing army which the American people will not be slow to forget. It has been proved conclusively that in several of our States, the militia cannot be depended upon for effective service. The only body that is able to enforce respect for law and order when a mob is gathered such as burned cars and attacked train crews at Chicago during the Debs strike, is the United States army. In our own State, when its principal railway was tied up for nearly a week, when we seemed to be on the verge of anarchy, peace was restored as if by magic as soon as the word was given for the Federal troops to move.

The old arguments against an increase of the army are no longer valid. The scare that was raised at the end of the revolution, when some people professed to fear that Washington, by means of the army, might make himself a dictator; the scare of a similar sort at the end of the civil war, when some professed to fear the same thing from Grant, cannot be revived. The nation is strong enough now to disregard that fear. There is far more danger of mob rule than there is of an assumption of unconstitutional military powers by the chief executive of the nation. We are in much greater peril from anarchism than from militarism.

Furthermore, it is a possibility not to be lost sight of altogether that we may become embroiled in an unpleasant way with some foreign country. Certainly the lack of a standing army of respectable size constitutes a temptation to foreign powers, if for any reason any of them should become unfriendly, to attack us; while an army of a good degree of efficiency is a powerful guarantee of peace with all the world. There is no sign now, to be sure, of any complications which might make an army necessary for this purpose; but it is idle to deny the possibility of such complications.

But entirely aside from any possibility of need for a larger army for foreign use, the report of the general of the army makes it clear that we need more men for domestic use; and Congress ought to see to it that we have them.

CONVENTION CITY.

The new role of Colorado Springs, so successfully performed for the second time at the Keeley convention, is beginning to attract the large audiences which the merits of the performance warrant. The International Typographical union is coming here for its next meeting. Three other conventions are "on the string," and next summer bids fair to be the liveliest season we have ever had in this town.

All that was needed for a basis was a building capable of accommodating comfortably the crowd which comes with a national convention. The Coliseum has that. Now our missionaries can go to the meetings of the various bodies with which they may be connected, as Mr. McCaffery did to the Typographical union, and present such a list of attractions as will make competition useless, and give Colorado Springs almost a walk-over for every convention she really wants.

With the present railway facilities, distance cuts little figure in the calculations of such conventions; sometimes, indeed, it is considered an advantage to take a long trip, and we shall find that our location is rather an advantage than a disadvantage in that respect.

Every convention held here will make it more certain that we shall have the next. Our most effective advertisers and promoters will be the men who have been here once, and when we get a few thousands of them scattered all over the country, the name and fame of Colorado Springs will need little exploitation by local agencies.

We may add, that every convention that comes here adds to the value of the Coliseum stock, and that those who invest now stand a good chance to get a handsome return for their money.

The decision to hold the next convention of the International Typographical union in this city is gratifying in many respects. The I. T. U., as it is familiarly called, is one of the best and most conservative of the trades unions of the country and the delegates to the convention are men that any city might be pleased to welcome as its guests. It is the first time in the history of the convention that a city as small as Colorado Springs has been selected as its meeting place, and the fact that the National Home of the union is located at this place does not appreciably lessen the honor of the selection, which was emphasized by a choice on the first ballot. Coming so soon after the completion of the Colorado Springs Coliseum, and depending directly upon that event, the action of the Printers' union is a striking demonstration of the wisdom of those who planned and built the Coliseum.

Things political are badly mixed again in New York city. Although it was announced that the State Democracy had indorsed the candidacy of Strong and Goff, it is certain that Mr. Straus is looked upon as a Grace man, and that some kind of a deal has been made between Grace and Hill. We do not believe, however, that the deal can be carried out successfully, and it looks now as if Hill would be badly beaten, while the prospects of Strong's election are very good.

The Denver News has had to crawl again on its assertion that Judge McIntire is an A. P. A. It asserted positively that he had applied for membership in the order, and that the application had been accepted. Whereupon Mr. Mix, of the Alamosa Independent Journal, offered $1,000 if The News could substantiate its assertion, and The News now says that it cannot be proved, but reiterates it just the same.

About this time in the campaign look out for startling announcements in the Populist papers that a "corruption fund" has been raised by the "gold-bugs of Wall street" for the election of McIntire. Campaign lies of every sort must be looked for from the desperate gang of Waite heelers from now until after election.

The Japanese capture of Wi Ju clinches their hold on Korea, and they will now be able to turn their undivided attention to the attack on China.

Of Interest to Potato Growers.

The potato growers of Colorado will be interested to learn that half a million bushels of potatoes were imported from Scotland during the nine months ending June, 1894. This was done while the duty was 25 cents per bushel. Under Hon. John C. Bell's tariff that duty has been reduced to 15 cents per bushel and as a result the importation of Scotch potatoes will be largely increased. Farm hands receive two dollars per week in Scotland, and this is the kind of labor with which American potato growers must compete. Yet Mr. Bell claims to be a friend of the farmer.—(Pueblo Chieftain.

"Tours of Inspection."

It is remarkable how many State officials are absent from Denver on "tours of inspection" throughout the State. This simply means that these men are making Populist campaign speeches and the already overburdened taxpayers are paying them not only their salaries but their traveling expenses. Reform goes marching on.—(Pueblo Chieftain.

Card of Mr. Goudy.

Editor Southwest.

I denounce the statement that I am an agent of the A. P. A., as an infamous lie. I am a Republican striving to do my duty as a citizen in showing up the outrages committed by a Populist administration against the people of this great State. I employ and pay from 20 to 50 Catholics every single month and I have been so doing for six years and expect to continue so doing without fear or favor. One of them is now in my office, and his name is Ed Ryan.

Respectfully,
FRANK C. GOUDY.

STATE NEWS ITEMS.

Things of Interest All Over Colorado.

The outlook for Rocky Ford and vicinity is most excellent. Inquiries for real estate are more numerous than for the past year and large numbers of people are coming in from the States to the eastward. It looks as if our real estate men, who have had a season of enforced idleness, would have a winter of activity. The only drawback to the growth of the town is the lack of dwelling houses. We trust that those of our citizens who are so fortunate as to be classed as capitalists will see to it that this state of affairs does not continue. Houses of moderate cost will rent readily at a price which will give excellent returns on the investment. Let us have more houses built at once.

The Trinidad Advertiser is running one of Thomas's speeches as a serial, at the rate of two columns a day. At this rate it will be concluded just before election day.

The Florence Oil Refiner says: Messrs. J. B. Orman, W. K. Johnson, J. A. McCandless and H. A. Sumner spent Saturday, Sunday and Monday on a trip to Silver Cliff. It was a sort of pleasure and business trip and as such was a success. The gentlemen were feted and feasted by the citizens who showed them about the mines and the valley, talking railroad all the while of course. As to the railroad into the Geyser-Rosita country, of course, it will come, a fair grade is obtainable via Oak creek. There are abundant reasons why a railroad should be built into the Wet Mountain valley.

Once more is an effort being put forth by our more enterprising citizens to establish an organization whose business it shall be to look after the general welfare of our city, advertise its resources and attractions, and interest manufactories. The movement is to be commended. Every citizen who has any interest in Florence should join the association which it has been decided to name the Chamber of Commerce. A great many matters of interest to the city will demand attention during the next six months, but unless there is an organized body of citizens to take them in hand they will never be looked after. A committee consisting of J. A. McCandless, Isaac Canfield and J. W. Work will call on every business man and others soliciting memberships, and it is to be hoped that all will take hold of the Chamber of Commerce and push it.

The Potato bake at Elbert on Tuesday, Sept. 25, was a grand success. The people of Elbert and Elbert county are deserving of much praise for getting up and successfully managing so grand an affair. The day was one of Colorado's finest and the people came in on trains, wagons, horseback and bicycles—and one walked in. It was the largest turnout in the history of Elbert.

Judge Fahrion was there; all the candidates that could come were there; and it was estimated that 150 other folks could have been seen on the grounds.

Six muttons and an immense steer, weighing when dressed 260 pounds and raised at Elbert, were roasted whole, and a grand barbecue given at a fine grove of trees just east of town.

REVIEW OF TRADE

Dun & Co.'s Weekly Commercial Summary.

York, Oct. 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s ly Review of Trade to-morrow will iness is still waiting for the devel- nt of retail trade. There is a little demand in some ndustries, but not od in others. Wholesale dealers in all branches are halting because business does not yet show dis- what it is to be. Lower prices for reat farm staples, and lower wages ne establishments, hinder purchases onsumption while political interest ncertainty also have some retarding nce. Meanwhile large imports and exports of merchandise with in ate employment of money here, are g the rates of foreign exchange so possibilities of gold exports some- affect the stock market. The halt- ttitude for the moment is disturb- o those who have looked for contin- ain, though rightly considered, it is al consequence of conditions which to be expected at this season.

government crop reports are not ly trusted and yet have an influence, actually exaggerate the tendency to- lower prices because they are sup- l to put all the crops too low. Men y reckon that, if the government t indicates over 400,000,000 bushels heat, the crop must be over 500,000,000 els, and though Western receipts he week have been only 4,467,075 els against 6,335,302 ast year, and ntic exports only 617,213 bushels st 900,561 last year, the price is tly lower. Corn has been strong, for pts are hardly a quarter and ex- barely an eighth of last year's, and question whether the actual yield, ove the goverament estimate, may prove lower than has been supposed. cotton returns are more confusing. ll point to a yield so far above that indicated by the government that its statement has been followed by a further decline.

Reports from the different cities show, as they did a week ago, that while extreme low prices for cotton and wheat are checking retail purchases in the West and South, there is nevertheless a gradual gain. Monetary movements indicate that the expected expansion of interior trade has not been wholly realized, and the demand for currency from this city has materially slackened. The demand for commercial loans is weaker and 3 per cent. is quoted for prime four months' paper. Some bankers report further withdrawals of foreign capital, and sterling exchange is so strong that exports of gold are considered probable, an important cause being the apprehension of possible disturbances if the Czar's malady should terminate fatally. Foreign imports for two weeks are only $280,000 larger than last year, and internal revenue $1,280,000 smaller.

The stock market has been timid and inactive declining only 9 cents per share for railroads and gaining 10 cents for trusts. The railroad earnings are not as unfavorable for October thus far as in September, showing a decrease of .8 per cent. for the month against 7.2 for September and compared with 1892, showing a decrease in Oct. of 10.6 per cent. against 15.6 per cent. in September. The tonnage movement from Chicago continues behind that of last year. The exchanges at principal clearing houses for the second week of October are relatively smaller than for the first week, exceeding those of last year, only 3.1 per cent., while 21.5 per cent. less than in 1892. The general average of prices is now about 6 per cent. lower than a year ago, though still somewhat higher than in July last.

The iron industry records larger production in September than in any other month this year, but as prices are gradually weakening because of insufficient demand for finished products, some works are preparing to close or shorten time. A few good structural contracts are reported. The season for boots and shoes has been unusually good in number of cases shipped, but in value the decrease must be large, because of the general preference of low price goods. It is stated that 80 per cent. of spring orders are for shoes selling at $1 or lower, and heavy shoes have largely taken the place of boots. The demand of cotton goods has materially slackened, and prices have become irregular, although resumption of work at Fall River and New Bedford with only 5 per cent. lower wages indicates confidence in the future. The woolen mills still have numerous belated orders for fall goods but the demand for spring does not increase.

Sales of wool have been 4,877,949 pounds against 2,500,452 last year, and 7,000,600 in 1892, and prices a shade weaker for fine fleece, Ohio XX selling at 17 1-2 cents at Philadelphia, but combing and territory wool are steady.

Failures for the week ending Oct. 4 show liabilities of $1,714,276 of which $845,885 are of manufacturing and $892,391 of trading concerns. The final report for September shows liabilities of only $7,397,124 of which $3,251,372 are of manufacturing and $3,710,012 of trading concerns.

The failures this week have been 221 in the United States against 203 last year and 43 in Canada against 42 last year.

TRIED TO ESCAPE.

Another Attempt of Prisoners to Get Out of Jail.

Governor Waite must have told Dynamite Shorty and Jerry Dunn and the rest of his pets in the county jail that his chances are pretty slim for re-elecion, for the very afternoon he visited them the boys began an attempt to dig out of jail. Maybe he told the boys that their vote is needed and that they must get upon the hill and get registered before it is too late.

As stated the very afternoon the Governor was at the jail the men began their effort to get out. They were trying to dig through eight feet of solid cement, when one of the guards discovered the fact. They would have made their way through in time to vote for the second term of Governor McIntire if allowed to proceed with the crude implements at hand. Yesterday and the day before was spent by jailer Beall and his assistants in searching the men. They took away three saws they had been handed in. They do not connect the Governor with this fact at the jail, however, because they were not buzz-saws nor did they work with wheels in any way. Some of them were quite ingenious, having been constructed of the simpliest material. Mr. Beall has his hands full with the jail so full of prisoners, for they are constantly making efforts to escape. The successful effort of two of the Bull hill men in getting away has filled the rest of them with an ambition to do likewise.

The Denver News yesterday had an article figuring on the outcome of the fall election. The article provoked shouts of laughter here. Among the ridiculous statements was one to the effect that El Paso county is in doubt and may give a Populist majority. The politicians here only hope the Populists are basing their statements on the same kind of calculations all over the State. The citizen in speaking of the matter yesterday said: "The article is a part of the scheme by which the Denver News fools its readers year in and year out. Its news articles are always colored to suit the editorial policy of the paper and never have any regard to facts. The people down here learned that last summer even if they had not year after year seen the paper come out with a rooster on election morning shouting victory for the ticket which its editor happened to be supporting that week, when every tyro in the State knew that the particular ticket has been snowed under."

Dr. Estill, J. W. Campbell, Wm. Horrer and son, have returned to the Springs from the White river. They report an abundance of game, principally deer and elk. Quite a number of bear were seen and some good shots made in the party particularly by Dr. Estill.

Colorado Springs Exchange.

Colorado Springs, Oct. 12—There was a good crowd present in the pit at the first call to-day but somehow or other not much business was done. Before starting Secretary Donaldson read a new rule that had just been passed upon by the governing committee and which is aimed to better regulate the quotations on stocks. The rule states that for all stocks selling at or below 10 cents a bid or offer of not less than 1000 shares shall make a quotation and in a similar manner that on all stocks over 10 cents and under 50 cents a block of 500 or over must be bid or offered to make a quotation It met with approval.

Regarding the stocks Mollie Gibson proved to be in the same slumpy state as on the previous day, and A. J. just as strong, if not stronger. Specimen and Work showed a slight falling off and Pharmacist somewhat stronger. All the others were about the same.

The second call again proved the busiest of the day but though most of the other stocks were firm Mollie Gibson again declined in price At the start all offered at $1.60 was taken up, but later so much of it was on the floor that the bulls had to draw in their horns and reduced the bid figure to $1.55. C. O. D. is firm and any stock offered at 3 1-2 always finds a willing taker. There was some little trading in Golden Age, due, it is thought, to the strike made in the Sylvanite lode yesterday Argentum J. is as strong as ever and bids of 85 cannot tempt out any stock. It was quite a fair day's business, taken as a whole and amounted to over 16,000 shares.

The separate sales for the first call were: Mollie Gibson, 200, 100, 100 and 200 at $1.60. Argentum J., 500 at 87½: Specimen, 1000 at ⅞, 1000 at ¾: Fanny Rawlings, 1000 at 8; Franklin, 2000 at ⅞, 2000 at 15-16. For the second call they were: Mollie Gibson, 150, 200, 600 at $1.60 and $1.50@$1.55; Specimen, ¾@⅞, 5000; Summit, 1000 at 13½; C. O. D., 1000 at 3¼; Golden Age, 1000 at 1.

Curb Sales

The curb brokers were busy again to-day and several stocks were selling in large quantities more particularly Golden Age, Golden Dale, Gold Standard and Enterprise. There was still a good demand for Monarch and Orphan Bell, but there was none of it about. Considering that many of the old stocks are traded in entirely on the exchange the day's business may be considered very good.

Cripple Creek Has Fine Gold.

Special to The Gazette.

Denver, Oct. 12—The deposits at the local mint to-day were light when compared with yesterday, which was however a very big day. The total number of ounces handed in were 620 and its value $1 200. This is nearly $20 per ounce, and the high value is due to the exceptionally good quality of the gold some of which is from Cripple Creek, which always contributes fine stuff.

The different deposits came from the following places. El Paso (Cripple Creek) one deposit of 77 ounces, Jefferson, one of 5 ounces, Boulder, one of 6 ounces; San Miguel, one of 23 ounces, Gilpin, five of 95 ounces; Colorado Unknown, one of 40 ounces.

Current News

And Mollie went down, down, down.

Troy and Burke are still working the Free Silver, a fractional claim on Raven hill.

The assays on Sylvanite ore, of which mention is made elsewhere returned $14 and $15 to the ton.

Two off board sales were reported yesterday, they were 1000 Consolidated at 1 1-8 and 3000 Creede and Cripple Creek at 1 1-4.

J. S Phillips is working on the Gold Dollar for the Stacy lessees and reports the new shaft down 30 feet, with a good lead in sight, carrying a fair looking quartz ore.

By a typographical error it was stated in these columns yesterday that the Golden Age company had bonded its Dolphin lode for $7000. It should, of course, have been $70,000. The time of the bond is 12 months.

The King of Diamonds lode, which is Spring creek way, is showing up some of the prettiest ore ever seen in the Cripple Creek district. There is about four feet of the stuff and runs into big values, some of it assaying as high as $300 and $100 to the ton.

The new management of the Jack G., on Raven hill, have started a new shaft on that property and it is making a very good showing. The old workings have been abandoned, it being the intention to make this new shaft the main workings for the future.

Mr. James Doyle, the Anaconda assayer says that the average value of samples left at his office in the last three weeks by prospectors have more value by many per cent. than ever before For this reason he is enthusiastic over the future and the immediate future at that.

The misfortunes of the Amethyst at Creede continue. While lowering a pump the other day the wrench slipped and it went to the bottom. A sinker is keeping the water level while a new pump is being put in place It will retard the recovery of the bodies.

The suit of Farris against the Red Bird at Cripple Creek has been thrown out of court and the property returned to the company. The claim is situated on the trail between Cripple Creek and Anaconda, but up to date they have found more water in the shaft than anything else. It is, however, not so very, very far from the Sweet and Caledonia, and in writing of Cripple Creek 'tis vain to prophesy.

The Horseshoe on the northwest corner of Bull hill has commenced shipping ore. Pay rock was not encountered in this property until the shaft had reached a depth of 100 feet. Some people predict that on this particular vein a wonderful body of ore remains to be uncovered. They argue that so large a body of mineralized rock as is exposed on the surface is a blowout from a fissure below and insist that when the neck of this fissure is reached values will be concentrated in the quartz.—(Crusher.

A new mining company, the Gold Rock by name was incorporated yesterday. The company owns three claims and have done considerable work. On one of the claims a good vein, some four and a half feet wide has been opened up and in places it assays as high as $51 to the ton. The capital stock is for $1,000,000 and the officers as follows: President, Wm. Clark; vice-president, Wm. Downs; secretary Fred F. Horn; treasurer, W H. Gibson. These with E. H. Fuller and J. O. Van Orsdal are the directorate or the first year.

The preferred stock of the Bartlett Gold Reduction and Mining company is being spoken for in large quantities and most of it is going to local buyers who best know the merits of the concern. It is said by some that the price of the stock is somewhat high but then a good article always demands its price and this company, it is believed, is the only one connected with Cripple Creek which offers preferred stock and guarantees to pay 10 per cent. upon it before any dividends are declared on the other. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the invention that has solved the treatment of the low grade and refractory ores of our great gold camp. It will not only be a wonderfully profitable concern itself but increase the yield of the camp in a manner which we cannot now guess the limit of.

ago, Oct. 12—A marked absence of le trading was apparent in the market to-day. There was, as g the past few days a moderate nt of liquidation which was met a demand from privilege holders ocal shorts. The buying was suf- ly large to absorb the offerings. lation was decidedly light, pending advent of something meritorious h to cause a radical change in ituation. The early trading was at fractionally lower than yesterday. Ohio State report and lower cables Liverpool giving no encouragement ending purchasers. Withdrawals from store were 91,100 bushels. The cash demand for wheat in Minneapolis was said to be pretty good to-day, closing firmness in this market resulting from this report. December wheat opened from 52⅞ to 52¾, sold between 52½@⅝ and 53, closing a shade higher than yesterday at the outside. Estimates for to-morrow 61 cars.

Corn—But little can be said of the corn market to-day. The opening was easy on expectations of larger inferior offerings, due to the clear fine weather and because of the weaker feeling in wheat. Late independent strength came from covering by "shorts" and buying against "puts" the trade having nothing of note or interest in it. Liverpool cables were half pence lower to half pence higher. Receipts 78 cars, were 42 under estimates and 115 are expected to-morrow. Withdrawals from store were 11,200 bushels and exports 4659 bushels. May corn opened from 49¼ to 49⅝ sold between 49¼ and 49¾, closing at 49⅝@¾, a fraction over yesterday.

DANGER!

Many of our citizens may not be aware that we have already established in our midst that which will, if permitted, cause us more trouble than a cyclone or a pestilance. It is the Russian Thistle.

It will take possession of every foot of land in El Paso County and make it absolutely worthless, and that in a very short time.

By a unanimous vote of the City Council at its last session the Police Committee were instructed to confer with the County Commissioners and take such measures as they together saw fit.

Therefore, we, the said committee, jointly with the County Commissioners, do hereby appeal to every citizen of Colorado Springs and El Paso County who own property or are in any way interested, to make investigations and destroy by fire every vestage of said weed on or adjacent to their property, and use their influence with their neighbors to do the same.

Samples of the weed can be seen in many of the stores and public buildings in the city.

By order of the committee.

E. S. BUMSTEAD,
Chairman Police Committee.
C. W. LONG,
Chairman County Commissioners.

The Rio Grande 8:00 a. m. train now connects with Cogwheel train for the top of Pike's Peak and gives a carriage ride through Manitou and return. Fare for the round trip $3.25.

DEFECTIVE EYESIGHT,

In youth or age, should be scientifically fitted with lenses. The rapid loss of eyesight in age can very often be traced to the neglect of the proper care of the eyes in youth, and cheap, poorly-fitted lenses. Errors of eye sight develop most rapidly during school life and should be corrected by accurately-fitted lenses, no matter what the age.

Our optical department is in charge of a SPECIALIST, in both the scientific adjustment of lenses and their manufacture, hence a perfect fit of glasses, from $1 upwards.
